WANTS A WIFE.

Guiteau Matrimonially Inclined---His Choice a Christian Lady Under Thirty.

His Account of the Shooting of the Late President.

The Stalwarts Sullen and Vindictive—President Arthur—Political News.

The New York Republicans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The struggle which began yesterday only ended at one o'clock yesterday, when, after a bitter contest in which defiant and sarcastic speeches were made on the Stalwart side, the convention decided not to reorganize the party in this city and Brooklyn. This Stalwart victory was gained by the striking fear of the half-breeds that the machine would defeat the ticket. In other respects the Stalwarts were to be made to feel their defeat. The delegates from Conkling's own district were unseated, his bitter opponent, Depew, was made chairman, and the State Committee, his former mainstay, was reorganized of his opponents. The ticket gives satisfaction, but the defeat of Maj. Hunt and the success of Gen. Husted, a persecuted Half-breed, are a bitter dose to the machine. The general result of the convention shows that the reaction against Conklingism continues; that President Arthur's personal influence counts for nothing with the party at large and that Grantism buried at Chicago sticks forth malignant and aggressive. The machine now expects to gain by Federal patronage what it has lost in a fair fight. The Times says that the convention shows a renewed spirit of independence in the party. The Tribune predicts a sweeping victory. The Sun and Truth represent the Stalwarts as sullen and vindicative.

Guiteau's Autobiography.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The Herald prints a long biographical statement by Guiteau, in which he says: "I shot the President without malice or murderous intent. I deny any liability in this case. I never," he adds, "had the slightest idea of removing Mr. Blaine or any member of the administration. In bringing his autobiography to an end Guiteau makes the astounding statement that he wants a wife. "I am looking," he says, "for a wife, and see no objection to mentioning it here. I want an elegant Christian lady of wealth, under thirty, belonging to a first-class family. Any such lady can address me in the utmost confidence." He declares that he will be nominated and elected President as Lincoln and Garfield were, by the act of God. Writing of the shooting he says: "I stood five or six feet behind him right in the middle of the room, and as he was in the act of walking away from me I pulled out the revolver and fired. He straightened up and threw his head back and seemed to be perfectly bewildered. He did not seem to know what struck him. I looked at him. He did not drop, and I thereupon pulled again. He dropped his head, seemed to reel and fell out. I do not know where the first shot hit, if I failed at the hollow of his back, if I did not aim for any particular place, but I knew if I got those two bullets in his back he would certainly go. I was in a diagonal direction from the President, to the northwest, and supposed both shots struck.

The President's Quarters.

WASHINGTON, October 6.—J. Stanley Brown states that it is President Arthur's expressed intention to continue at the residence of Senator Jones for some time. The President thinks the extra session of the Senate will be of brief duration and until that is over he will remain in his present quarters. After that it is probable that he will remove to the Soldiers' Home until the White House repairs are fully completed. The first Cabinet meeting of the new Administration will be held next Tuesday. The President positively declines to hear any applicants for public office, and thinks the minor offices now vacant should be filled by the heads of the various departments.

The Guiteau Indictment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 6.—The indictment in the case of Guiteau has been completed and is now in the hands of the printer. It will not be given to the grand jury to-day, and owing to the absence of Scoville, counsel for the defense, in New York, it is possible that this body will not act upon it until next week.

Paying Their Respects.

WASHINGTON, October 6.—The members of the National Board of Steam Navigation this morning proceeded in a body to the residence of Senator Jones for the purpose of paying their respects to President Arthur.

Garfield's Casket.

CLEVELAND, October 6.—At a late hour last night Garfield's remains were transferred very quietly from the casket in which they came from Elberon to the air-tight case made of sheet bronze. Mayor Herrick received a letter, dated September 29, stating that on representations of the Union League Club and prominent citizens of New York, the body was not placed in a proper receptacle and the Metallic Burial Case Company of New York offered a casket which was made specially for the purpose. Mrs. Garfield and Dr. J. H. Robeson were summoned by telegraph, and came here yesterday to see the casket, which was sent on by special car. Mrs. Garfield was much pleased with the gift, and in accordance with her wishes the transfer of the remains was made. The casket is of sheet bronze, elaborately wrought with gold trimmings. A solid gold plate to be fixed on the top of the casket will be inscribed as Mrs. Garfield desires. The remains were in an unexpectedly good state of preservation, and now that the proper casket has been provided it is probable that the plans of the Monument Committee will be changed and instead of the body being put in the ground a crypt will be erected and the casket exposed to view.

Peabody Educational Fund.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The Trustees of the Peabody Educational Fund began their annual meeting yesterday, Robert C. Winthrop, president of the board, in the chair. Ex-President Hayes was present. The annual report spoke favorably of the advancement in educational matters in the South and reviewed at length the work accomplished. Great and gratifying as had been the progress both in public sentiment and educational system, the report said it must not be concluded that free schools were established beyond the possibility of repeal or destruction. The instruction of the board to apply the greater portion of the income of the fund hereafter to the education of teachers for public schools has met with a general and decided approval. The income distributed since February 1, 1881, amounted to $50,375.

Pulaski Burned.

OSWEGO, October 6.—A fire broke out this morning in the business part of the village of Pulaski, and several buildings on both sides of Main street were burned. A steamer has been sent there from this city.

THE DETAILS.

The entire business portion of the town is in ruins. The loss is over $200,000. Principal losers: Dr. J. N. Betts, H. B. Clark, Salmon River Hotel, Geo. M. Douglass, Pulaski National Bank, W. L. Hollis, G. W. Fuller & Son, C. C. Woods, Pulaski Democrat, A. N. Beadle, H. H. Lyman, D. B. Meacham & Son, Capt. L. M. Tilers, J. S. Jones and John T. Box. The telegraph, express and post-office were burned.

THE BLOOMINGTON LYNCHING.

Floral Tributes to a Murderer's Bier Rejected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., October 6.—The remains of the murderer Charles Pierce, alias Smith, who was hung by a mob for the atrocious murder of "Teddy" Frank Saturday night, are still in a state of preservation at the undertaker's, awaiting possible orders from his friends. To-day members of the medical fraternity called and asked for the body for dissecting purposes, but met with a denial. Also a number of ladies visited the undertaker's office with flowers, with the request that they be deposited on the murderer's coffin, but were refused in their requests. It seems that Pierce's right name is Smith, and he formerly resided at Fairfield, Iowa, where his step-father, P. H. Howlett, is cashier in one of the leading banks of that place. The murderer studied law and was regarded as a young man of extraordinary ability. He was a very brilliant writer and wrote some very excellent poetry and prose while at school and since he arrived at manhood. Notwithstanding his brilliant attainments he seemed to have a natural propensity for getting into trouble and having difficulty with all whom he came in contact with. It is thought his relatives will arrive some time to-day and claim the body.

LYNCH HIM!

Cruel, Brutal, Bestial, Cowardly Outrage and Murder of a Woman.

LANCASTER, PA., October 6.—Edward Sanders and Philip Rogers, two notorious characters in this city, last night forced their way into the room of Mrs. Mary Seymour, and, in the presence of her three children, Sanders criminally assaulted her. The woman struggled desperately to escape and at last succeeded, Sanders following her into the street and knocking her down several times. Mrs. Seymour escaped to a neighbor's house, where she died from the effects of the injuries. Both men were arrested.

Indications.

Lake Region, fair weather, southeasterly winds, lower barometer and stationary or higher temperature. #### He Got Twenty Per Cent.

On the 27th day of last August James Costello was in the employ of David and P. J. Clifford, making an excavation for a sewer on Jefferson avenue. While thus employed the sides of the excavation caved in, injuring Costello, and for this injury he sued his employers before Justice McCann, asking judgment in the sum of $250. The case was called this morning and Attorney Leander J. Smith and Amos R. Taylor appeared for the plaintiff and defendant respectively. The case was tried before Justice McCann and a jury, and the jury after a brief consultation awarded plaintiff 20 per cent of his demand.

'CHANGE NOTES.

The Exchange Closed—An October Delivery—The Stock of Flour.

The Exchange was closed to-day, giving the members an opportunity of attending the Fair.

Frank Mitchell considers himself the luckiest fellow on the floor. A short time ago he had an elegant watch presented him, and now he rejoices in a fine boy, delivered yesterday on October contract.

Bets have been made that corn will sell in this market at $1 before the first of June, and that wheat will sell at $2 before the season ends. Ben Barnes, while a well horned bull, has put up $500 against the latter "prop."

Rumors were rife on 'Change yesterday morning that another failure had occurred in Chicago, and one of the largest and best known grain houses there was named. This report was discovered to be false, and no fresh failures were heard of in that shaky market yesterday. Affairs are very unsettled there, and some of the best houses are refusing to fill option orders until matters become straightened out.

Now that the markets are getting exciting and uncertain the Western Union promptly come to the front with their stereotyped report of "wires down." This has got to be such a common affair that the merchants now look for it when business gets rushing. It is pretty near time the Western Union fulfilled its promises and gave a decent and prompt service, especially to Chicago. "Toppy's" attention is respectfully called to this matter.

The stock of flour in this market, as reported to Secretary Morgan by dealers here, is only a little over 95 000 barrels. Well informed parties say this is nonsensical, and that some one is making false returns. The stock is placed by reliable dealers at twice to three times the amount reported to the Secretary. It is supposed some parties who are speculating on the market and who wish to influence prices are holding back their true stock.

"J. L. W.," a desperate bear, and probably short a lonely five wheat, rushed into print yesterday with a statement that shipments of wheat from here to Liverpool were 26⅛c out of line. If "J. L. W." had obtained correct figures on river and ocean freights, instead of the preposterously high rates given him by "three exporters," he would discover that the difference to the disfavor of wheat shipments is not near so large as he makes it out to be.

R. B. BULLOCK has all the new shades in Corticelli Spool silk.

CHAS. DEICHLER has just received 300 dozen Corticelli Spool Silk.

Hinton's Harness Establishment.

One of the attractive institutions of the city is the extensive fine harness manufactory and headquarters for the sale of all articles pertaining to the toilet of the horse, of J. R. Hinton, at 618 Pine street. All persons who want good, honest, handsomely finished harness for small money, should give this establishment a call. The finest hand-work harness is turned out here. Particular attention is called to the mammoth stock of horse blankets and lap-robes of the finest texture and all prices. The stock of whips, brushes, combs and such articles is large and complete. None but the most skillful workmen are employed. All sorts of boots and special harness are made at reasonable rates. The rapid growth of the business of Mr. Hinton is testimony to the high character of the work turned out by him.

AT BARR'S Dry Goods Palace you can match any shade under the sun in the choicest of all spool silk, the unequaled Corticelli.

CITY PERSONALS.

H. W. H. Gregg and family have returned home from a ten weeks' visit to the watering places.

Mrs. Geo. L. Croh, of Wyandotte, Kas., and Miss Anna Keill, of Kansas City, are the guests of Mrs. J. W. Allen this week.

Rev. J. W. Allen, D. D., leaves the city this evening to attend the session of the Synod of Kansas, which will be held at Manhattan to-morrow and Saturday.

Dr. John A. Benson, of the United States Marine Hospital, who is assisting Dr. Sawtelle, registered at the Health Department. Dr. Sawtelle is going to Washington in a few days, when Dr. Benson will take charge of the Marine Hospital.

S. BUCHANNAN & CO. have just stocked up with Corticelli spool silk.

WM. BARR D. G. CO. use and sell no other spool or embroidery silk than the "Unequaled Corticelli."

Bearded Like a Pard.

Dr. B. A. Bugg, of Arkansas, who has been on 'Change for several days, has been photographed. The Doctor has an extraordinary beard, over six feet in length, and as he is not as tall as his beard, is long, he has to stand on a platform to have his beard rightly photographed. Dr. Bugg usually allows about eighteen inches of his whiskers to appear and hides the remainder under his shirt, tying it around his waist.

SAMUEL L. HILL founded the Nonotuck Silk Company forty-three years ago, and to-day their mills—the Corticelli—are the most extensive of their kind in the world.

The Fireworks Display.

The Unexcelled Fireworks Company of New York will give their two magnificent displays this and to-morrow evenings at the Grand Avenue Park, near the Fair Grounds. Commencing at 8 o'clock there will be a superb series of fine tableaux. The arrangements to receive the crowd are the best in the world, and all who attend the exhibitions will be well cared for.

FLORENCE KNITTING SILK and Corticelli embroideries at Green & Cavanaugh's.

BIG THURSDAY.

The Great Day of the Fair a Grand Success.

Crowds Thronging the Grounds—The Awards—Notes and Incidents.

The crisp, cool weather early this morning was the best possible assurance for a great day at the Fair, and seldom did fulfilment follow so closely on prophecy. The cars starting as early as 8 o'clock were uncomfortably crowded, and by 9 people were beginning to ride around from beyond the terminus in order to secure even standing-room in the vehicles. The Humane Society might easily devote some of its superfluous energy to the condition of the horses in the cars. Nearly all the teams pulling up to the Fair Ground termini were evidently badly jaded and worn out even during the morning hours. At 9 o'clock, too, the visitors began to test fully the ticket-issuing capacities of the different offices. At each gate a queue was formed, such as one sees at popular engagements at the theaters, and the lines of people wound slowly but steadily towards the center of the grounds from all sides. From the top of the elevator one can obtain probably the best possible idea of what Thursday, the great day of the Fair, means. One is, of course, too high there to individualize, but humanity presents itself in the mass for inspection rather than as units. From this coign of vantage, then, the view is superb. On every side the numerous buildings of the association pit through the boscage, and through the tops of the trees, which are still sparkling with the dew, the avenues crowded with people appear. They do not seem to be roads, however, but long processions of men, women and children walking toward that immense ganglion, the amphitheater and then again spreading out fan-like through the Zoo-Zoo. Each of the more interesting attractions could be picked out with unerring certainty by the mass of human heads about it. Through the grounds the crowd displayed a most catholic taste. They were willing to be pleased at everything—to wonder at everything. In fact a reporter noticed a considerable crowd of people from the country surrounding in rapt enjoyment a cage of common gray and fox squirrels, and evidently getting more than the worth of their money out of that one cage alone. Of course, these people have seen squirrels all their lives, but never in a cage before.

The grounds have dried up nicely and the roads are now quite passable. The throngs must be seen to be appreciated. Certainly everything gives promise of the greatest crowd ever seen at a St. Louis Fair to-day. Even at an early hour the amphitheater was filled, every seat being occupied and the walk on the outside quite crowded. The crowd seems, too, to be very orderly. Undoubtedly a great deal of beer is being assimilated, but the only noticeable effect seems to be that the assimilators want to give the right hand of fellowship to all men.

The Photographs.

The photographic hall is now quite ready for inspection, all of the cases are up, and while the light might be better it is still good enough to make it apparent that the display is the best of the kind ever seen in St. Louis. F. W. Guerin, of 629 Olive street, occupies the western wall of the hall, which he has entirely covered with an exhibit which proves that photography is more of an art than a science. Seven cases full of cards, from the imperial size down to the cabinet, are on the eye-line. All of the faces in the collection are well known in St. Louis, and one cannot but admire the striking likenesses which the artist has succeeded in catching. There is a shell-like purity in the effects which must be seen to be appreciated. Some of the imperial cards look more like fine crayon work by the hands of a master than mere sun bitten collodion. The poses, too, in which the pictures have been taken leave nothing to be desired. They are all easy, graceful and natural, and, taking them for all in all, the pictures form the finest exhibit of art-work ever brought together in these grounds. Across the hall from Guerin's display is the exhibition of J. C. Strauss of 1313 Franklin avenue, an artist who has lately assumed a commanding position among the photographers of the city. The numerous pictures in his show certainly prove that he combines great ability with conscientious fidelity to nature. The faces shown are those of well known St. Louisans, and the throng continually bear witness to the faithfulness of the resemblance.

The Textile Hall.

In the Textile Annex the display is very creditable indeed. Mermod, Jaccard & Co. have five cases of solid sterling silverware which constitute more of an art exhibit than anything else. Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney have two splendid displays of dry goods disposed on either side of the beautiful grotto which ornamets the north end of the hall. Mr. Mellier has a case full of beautiful and toothsome-looking drugs in this department. The carpet display is very full and good. Trorlicht & Duncker have decorated one-fourth of the hall with their wares.

The Art Hall.

The Art Hall and annex were crowded to their utmost capacity. The chief favorites seemed to de the Rosebud, Moran's De Soto, St. Sebastian, the Lurlei, the Roll Call of the Victims of the Reign of Terror. The Rembrandt etchings did not seem to find much favor with the crowd, which surged by them after only a cursory glance.

Fruits, Jellies and Vegetables.

In this department, where produce of all kinds is shown, there remained only wines, wheat and hams to be passed upon this morning. The committee on hams got through their work rapidly, having by 11 o'clock given the first premium for sugar-cured hams to Messrs. Francis, Whittaker & Sons.

The awards were made at noon on red wines, closing this section of the department. The following are the awards:

Red Concord—First premium, J. Meyers, Brunswick, Mo.; second, J. Rinderer, Augusta, Mo.

Norton's Virginia—First premium, C. Schaumberg, Herman, Mo., second, J. Meyers, Brunswick, Mo.

Ives' Seedling—First premium, Poeschel & Seherer, St. Louis; second, Henry Henze, Herman, Mo.

Mechanical Hall.

All the awards in the mechanical department were made yesterday afternoon with the exception of very few, and these will be finished to day. The throng of visitors in the hall is very large, and the displays, several of which are extensive and handsome, were greatly admired.

The candy display made by Messrs. Blanke & Bro. in the square in the center of the hall is the best feature of the entire exhibition. Every year Messrs. Blanke & Bro. have contributed to the beauty of the general exhibition in Mechanical Hall, but their present display surpasses all others. The exhibit, which consists of jars and show cases of fancy-shaped and colored candies known to the trade, is built in the form of a high pyramid, at whose pinnacle a large Christmas tree is placed, its green branches heavily laden with bonbons and candies in silver and gilt papers. Every variety of small candy enters into the display, and the combination of colors, forms and sizes is very harmonious and attractive. At each of the four corners of the pyramid an ornamental piece is shown under a bell shaped glass case. Two of these pieces are cones of fancy candies, and the other two are decorative pieces for wedding cakes, put together in the shape of a tower. At the sides, four pictorial effects in candy are seen. One of these is a scene depicting "Valley Forge" with Washington in his skiff in the foreground; the second is an ox team, and the third and fourth landscapes with figures. All these objects are beautifully grouped with an effective ensemble. Messrs. Blanke & Bro., who have always carried off the blue ribbon heretofore, get it this year again, having been awarded the premium for the largest and best display of candy, and also for the finest piece of confectionery, plain or ornamental.

The judges in this department will conclude their work to-day. The awards on carriages and clothing will be made at 4 o'clock. This will wind up the business.

Machinery.

All the awards have been made in the machinery department except for portable and fixed fire-escapes, of which there are but two entries, both made by the same firm, Williams, Rundle & Co., of Edwardsville, Ill., to which the premiums will be given.

A Spitter.

William P. Botts, a boy of 16, was arrested to-day for getting upon the elevator at the Fair, and squirting tobacco juice freely on the heads of the people below. His position was almost inaccessible, but it was stormed eventually by an officer and the juvenile squirt was lugged off to the Bastile. Ben Morgan, a fresh-looking coon of 28, employed in the fruit and vegetable department, was pulled in by the fly cops for robbing a lady's pocket of 55 cents. Thomas Bell was arrested by Officer Holmes, of the Humane Society, for cruelty to animals. The usual run of drunks and disorderlies were disposed of.

Aspect Down Town.

The observance of the annual Fair holiday was perhaps more general to-day than at any other period of the great annual industrial, mechanical and agricultural exhibition. From an early hour in the morning, however, the visiting throngs packed the down-town thoroughfares, and it was only towards noon that the rush to the Fair Grounds became apparent. After that hour the wholesale and retail houses, banks, stores, etc., closed up, and the streets bore the usual Sunday aspect. All the public departments were closed for the day, and the only official found at his post was United States Assistant Attorney Drummond. The hotel corridors were crowded with visitors during the morning. The warm, genial sunshine brought out the resident population from all parts of town during the afternoon hours, and crowds gathered at all the down town termini of the several car lines leading to the Fair Grounds. If ever a sentiment in favor of elevated railroads was uttered in St. Louis by the masses, it found expression to-day at the utterly inadequate accommodation provided by horse cars and herdics, wagons, etc.

The business at the hotels indicated that the majority of visitors had prolonged their stay to witness the great annual festival at the Fair Grounds following the Veiled Prophets' carnival, and with one accord city and country turned out to-day to celebrate the industrial and mechanical anniversary. Visitors from the agricultural districts were the earliest on the Fair Grounds, following a principle that crowds should be avoided, and this element poured upon the central boulevards during the afternoon, admiring the new buildings, decorations, etc., pausing at intervals to refresh the inner man at the saloons and restaurants. The eminently favorable weather contributed in the greatest measure to the successful observance of the great day of Fair week in St. Louis.

THE CORNER-STONE.

tions, and commotions bring chaos. Who but the citizen soldiery can extricate us from this terrible disorder. You have spent your time and money in defense of the city, and it has taken years for the citizens, in their tardiness, to reward you. You do not owe the city one cent. You deserve ten times as much as they are doing for you here to-day. While the citizens were living in peace you were drilling; while they were heaping up bank accounts you were spending thousands of dollars in their behalf. I am glad that you have at last been recognized." Mr. Branch concluded by a reference to the union of the Police Reserves and the National Guards.

COL. HENRY HITCHCOCK

delivered the closing address. In other lands, —said the Colonel, such buildings were erected by the government, not as coming from the people and for the people but standing arrayed against the people. The governments ruled there to overawe the people but here the work is undertaken by the people, who are obedient because they are free, and free only as they are obedient. The citizen soldiery has solved the problem which has baffled all standing armies, and its existence renders possible a government of the people, by the people and for the people. The shadow of a common grief had strengthened the bonds of sympathy, and God be thanked that there were no longer any divisions in the land. A common sorrow had brought nearer and nearer together those who were once separated. The promise of the vindication of the supremacy of law would be fulfilled in the respect of the people for the citizen soldiery.

THE REVIEW.

At the conclusion of the address by Col. Hitchcock it was announced by Mr. Lionberger that the troops would pass in review before the Governor at the corner of Eighteenth and Pine streets. Here some seats had been erected for the Veiled Prophets' procession, and they were thrown open for this occasion to the public. Space was reserved at the northeast corner for the Governor and his staff, the committee invited guests and the press. The remaining portion was occupied by ladies and children and the residents of Stoddard Addition. When the company had adjourned from the corner-stone platform the troops moved into line again and marched south on Seventeenth, west on Chestnut and north on Eighteenth street, past the reviewing stand. The mounted police and band came first, followed by the First Regiment National Guards, 166 strong. They presented a fine, soldierly appearance and marched past with precision, eliciting the compliments of the company. The officers saluted the Governor passing the corner stand. The Zouaves attracted a great deal of attention from the fair sex. The Police Reserves—143 strong—came next, and the Light Guard Cavalry brought up the rear. This concluded the ceremonies of the day, and the troops, headed by the artillery, returned down town by way of Pine street to their respective headquarters and disbanded.

THE SPECTATORS.

A very large crowd had assembled around the new Armory site to view the ceremony and hear the addresses for the occasion. A detail of police kept order and a pathway clear to the platform for invited guests. The sidewalks were lined with spectators all around the block and the grounds of all the houses in the vicinity were filled with company interested in the military spectacle, which was heighened in beaty by the bright sunshine. Great interest was manifested in the speeches, and the closest attention given to the address of the Governor, whose remarks were interrupted by outbursts of applause. The speeches of Joseph W. Branch and Col. Hitchcock were also heartily applauded.

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW ARMORY.

The new armory is intended to meet the requirements of all the military organizations in the city, and if the plans are carried out faithfully St. Louis will undoubtedly possess the finest military headquarters in the West. The building will occupy a length of 193 feet by a depth of 109 feet on the north side of Pine street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth. It will present a front in the eclectic style with three stories surmounted by an imposing Gothic arched roof. The front and side walls and projections will be of red brick, with lime and sandstone trimmings. Windows range along the three stories, the upper story to be surmounted by port-cornice holes, which will serve a double purpose. The roof will be constructed of ornamental iron and wood, surmounted by a rail of modern design. The main entrance will be in the central projection, with entrances on either side for the Police Reserves and the National Guards. Over the main entrance, which will be twelve feet wide by twenty-one feet high, an oriel window is to be placed for a Gatling gun. The coat-of-arms of the State and the national arms will be the central figures of ornamentation over the grand entrance. Entering upon the street level, the cavalry and artillery drill-hall will be reached. This will be 30 feet high, 132 feet in length and 85 feet breadth, surrounded on three sides by the quarters of the Police Reserves and Cavalry on the west, and the artillery and the National Guards on the east side. The cavalry room and the stables will likewise be located west of the lower drill hall. There will be side entrances to each department, the doors to be nineteen feet high. Attached to each department will be parlors, retiring-rooms, etc., for the use of the members of each branch of the military housed at the Armory. Stairways lead east and west of the main entrance from the military quarters to the second story, which is to be arranged in the same manner as the ground floor. Here will probably be kept the stands of arms of the various organizations. A handsome balcony overlooking the cavalry and artillery drill-hall will be reached upon the second floor, extending around the three sides of the building. The third floor will be devoted exclusively to the drill and assembly room, which is to be the largest in the country. Its height will be 51 feet, length 193 feet, and it will have a breadth of 109 feet. The floor will be laid of solid double pine, and the interior fitting will be adapted to all the requirements of an assembly-room. All the modern improvements of lighting, heating and ventilation will be introduced at the new armory, and much pride is evinced by the military in the movement. It is proposed to occupy the new quarters early in the new year, when the capacity of the assembly room will be tested by a grand military ball. The architects and superintendents of the work are Miller & Pritcher.

HOW THE ARMORY CAME TO BE BUILT.

So long ago as 1852 there was organized in this city a company known as the St. Louis National Guards, but it "had its day and ceased to be." After the great railroad strike in 1877, the citizens of St. Louis thought that a more efficient means of protecting themselves and their property than they had hitherto enjoyed ought to be provided, and the practical result of the thought was the organization of the St. Louis National Guards, First Regiment. This was effected about three years ago. In 1879 the Guards were in need of funds to sustain their company, and accordingly applied to the public-spirited citizens of the city to aid them. A meeting was accordingly held and a Citizens' Fund Committee, consisting of Samuel Cupples, Dwight Tredway, J. R. Lionberger, E. C. Simmons, W. A. Hargadine, John C. Davis and others, appointed. The matter having thus taken form, sufficient money was raised by subscription to meet the necessary expenses for the two following years. It was hoped by the friends of the National Guard that the last Legislature would appropriate a fund to their use, but when this was not done the only alternatives remaining were either to ask aid from the citizens again or disband. Near the close of last March the board of directors, consisting of the officers of the regiment, among whom were Col. Geo. J. Chapman, Maj. L. F. Prince, Sergt. J. H. Leslie, Capt. A. L. Stanley and Capt. J. F. Cooke, addressed letters to several of the members of the Citizens' Fund Committee, asking what they would do toward the maintenance of the military organization. These gentlemen replied that if the ranks of the St. Louis National Guard, which at that time numbered only 50 active members, could be increased to 600 or 800, they would guarantee the necessary funds. In the early part of last April a meeting was called, and when contributions were asked, $5,000 was raised on the spot. At this meeting committees were appointed to visit the various trade organizations in the city and solicit additional money, and so successful were they that $17,000 cash and about $8,000 in pledges were at once secured. The fund had far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the projectors of the scheme, and the question arose, what was the best use to which it could be put. The membership of the National Guards had in the meantime been increased to 500 men, and they were, of course, desirous of purchasing uniforms and equipments, since with 750 men in the ranks, there were only 130 uniforms fit for dress parade, and with dress and fatigue uniforms together not more than 300 could be raised. The Citizens' Fund Committee, on the other hand, deemed it better to have an armory first and to finish uniforming and equipping the men afterward. The fact that the Guards were paying $2,500 a year rent for the armory they occupied lent weight to the argument, and the plan was finally adopted. The contract for erecting the armory, at Eighteenth and Pine streets, was awarded to Miller & Pritcher, architects, and Barnes & Morrison, builders. The estimated cost of the armory, exclusive of the expense of lighting and heating, is $33,000.

WITNESS FEES.

How the Police Come in for a Large Share of the Spoils.

The monthly salary of the St. Louis policeman is $75, but by some sharp practice officers doing down town duty usually increase their income from $5 to $15 a month during the busy portion of the year. In the Criminal Court office any day of the week during the sessions of that tribunal and the investigations of the grand jury a line of blue coats waiting to claim witness' fees can be seen. The modus operandi of the business is this: An officer arrests a man committing a felony; the officers on the adjoining beats are present, though they take no hand. The sergeant of the precinct usually has his notice called to the matter, and occasionally the officer at the station, so that besides the officer making the arrest, the only necessary witness in the case, there are three or four other officers ready to testify to the facts. The arresting officer swears out the warrant and hands to the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney the names of all the officers and sergeants who had any connection with the case whatever. After three or four continuances in the Court of Criminal Correction, for each of which every witness draws fifty cents, the case goes to the grand jury, when they get $1 for each day's attendance, and the case goes to the Criminal Court, where they draw the same amount per diem. So that when the case is disposed of they have from $8 to $15 coming to them. In the McQueen case some of the police, whose testimony was not worth the paper it was reported on, drew $12 witness fees, while the principal witness, who heard McQueen's confession of the killing and saw the woman before she died, only drew $9. A thorough examination of the facts to which witnesses can testify before the courts would do away with this and save the city thousands of dollars a year.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

James and George Brennan were arrested last night for disturbing the peace. They were assessed $2 and costs in 'Squire Bunyan's court this morning.

A young man named Burns, driving a feed wagon for Mrs. McLaughlin, residing on College Hill, East St. Louis, visited this side yesterday for a load of feed. Neither Burns nor the team has been seen since, and it is thought the team has been sold and Burns departed for parts unknown.

Angus Martin was arrested last night for wandering around the streets. When searched at the station $385, three revolvers and a knife were found upon his person. He was arraigned before 'Squire Bunyan this morning for carrying concealed weapons and was fined $25 and costs. Martin was on a visit from one of the suburban towns and thought it was necessary to convert himself into a citadel while passing through this peaceful burg.

Frank Husmann was fined $3 and costs by 'Squire Bunyan for having no license for a team he was working on this side of the river. James Durkin paid the same amount for peddling without license. John Costello and Jasper Williams, arrested on suspicion, were released for want of prosecution. George Vernan and George Cutriff, both drunk on the streets, were each assessed $3 and costs by 'Squire Bunyan. Wm. Cassidy, for trespassing, paid the same amount.

Officer Griffin made an important arrest this morning in the person of George Kefler, a young man from Jersey City. A few nights ago Kefler was arrested for wandering around the streets. When searched at the station nearly $600 were found upon his person, but he told such a plausible story about his home in the country and his desire of seeing the Veiled Prophets and St. Louis Fair that the Marshal ordered his release. But Kefler still hovered around the town, the police keeping a strict watch on his actions. This morning a telegram from Jersey City was received at the police station, stating that a young man, of whom a description was given, was wanted to answer a grave charge in that city. The description tallied with Kefler's general appearance, and in a short time Officer Griffin conducted him to the station. Kefler was arrested while sending a telegram to his friends, preparatory to leaving town on the next outbound train. The Sheriff of Jersey City will take him in charge this evening.

ERNEST KING, ESQ., editor of the Fall River (Mass.) Sun, editorially mentions that he was cured of severe rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil.

ALL St. Louis goes holidaying to day. Business is suspended and the city has moved out to the Fair Grounds.

ONE of the ablest divines in America, the Rev. STUART ROBINSON, died of cancer at his home in Louisville, Ky., yesterday.

THE parade of our citizen soldiery this morning was quite creditable, but the dignity of the occasion was somewhat impaired by Gov. CRITTENDEN'S soft, unseasonable and conspicuous white hat.

EUGENE GROSS has been appointed Assistant Chief of the Fire Department. There has been enough gross neglect in the Department of late and we are glad to see at last that GROSS has not been neglected.

IT is of some interest to St. Louis to know that JOHN M. DOUGLASS has been appointed Receiver of the O. & M. Railway, vice JOHN KING, resigned. The new appointee was formerly President of the Illinois Centra Railroad.

IT is a question whether GUITEAU or CORKHILL, the District Attorney in Washington, will make the most reputation out of the killing of the President. They both seem to be dead set on notoriety and just now CORKHILL has the call.

AN Associated Press dispatch from Washington says that "President ARTHUR passed the morning quietly." This is in the usual bulletin style. We would like to know whether his pulse and respiration are normal and his pus laudable.

WE are preparing a sketch of the life and public services of CHARLES GREEN (British subject in time of war) for the purpose of showing his proud admirers precisely what he has done toward building up St. Louis and making her the municipal queen that she is.

OUR very distinguished fellow-townsman THOMAS ALLEN, has turned up as a newspaper correspondent. He has written an account of a trip through Norway for the Republican and in return for the condescension is referred to by that eulogistic journal as "an American Statesman."

"DEAR HENRY" is informed by the Republican this morning that all its information on the subject of matrimonial insurance is derived from its own advertising columns. The Republican gets all its information in this way, and the limited and untrustworthy character of it is, therefore, not a bit surprising.

WOULD it not add somewhat to the efficiency of the Fire Department if the "Modoc" poker rooms were located over the Central Engine-house? It requires some time to pass from the "Modoc" headquarters to the engine-house when an alarm is sounded and this is clear loss to the Department at times.

EVERY true and patriotic St. Louisan will go to the Fair to-day regardless of the fact that Mr. CHARLES GREEN fancies that the institution belongs to him. The stock of the Fair Association pays no dividends and if the profits run up to $50,000 Mr. GREEN will only be able to get his highly ornamental salary of $3,000 out of it.

FOR simply saying that the Globe-Democrat turned tail on ARTHUR the mild-mannered editor of the Kansas City Journal is promptly called a Liar this morning. The man on the Kaw has mixed the babies up a little. It was CONKLING that the G.-D. went back on. But no matter. Sic him, Towser! Sic him, Bull! Harmony and unity forever!

THE fact that a few unemployed persons seeking distraction could be persuaded to stand in front of the Court-house last evening, while the north winds whistled through their attenuated garments, and listen to Greenback speeches is evidence that no amount of prosperity can kill off a party that promises to give people more money for less work. There is music, however, in the baritone voice of H. MARTIN WILLIAMS, and when corn extractors can gather crowds on the street-corners there is no reason why a Greenback apostle, skilled in his trade, should not be able to enchain a score or two of sidewalk idlers by the sheer force of his oratory.

COMPLAINT is made by the Cincinnati newspapers that the citizens of the town do not patronize the Exposition as liberally as the country folk do. As a matter of fact the Cincinnati show has lost its power to attract the people who are most familiar with it. Not so with the St. Louis Fair. The people of the city vie with their country cousins in patronizing the most creditable institution that the city can boast of.

GEN. GRANT says that at first he was opposed to the ship railway scheme originated by Capt. JAMES B. EADS, regarding it as impracticable, but Capt. EADS has met every objection he has advanced in such a way that he is rather of the opinion that he has been mistaken and it now seems to him that the plan is feasible. It looks very much as though somebody had slipped a block of the stock of the new ship railway company in the General's overcoat pocket.

IT will cause President ARTHUR'S heart to throb with the most generous emotions to know that it was Mr. G. WILLIAM CURTIS, the man-milliner of New York politics, who yesterday attempted to pledge him the support of the New York Republicans, at the same time requesting him to place his shoulder to the Civil Service Reform wheel. It is understood that Mr. ARTHUR is not fanatical on the subject of reform in the Civil Service, however much he may desire it in the Army and Navy.

LAST night Fourth street, from Washington avenue to Chestnut street, was a blaze of glorious gaslight, reminding one of fete nights on the boulevards of Paris. The merchants of that thoroughfare acquitted themselves nobly and we have every reason to believe that their enterprise will be remunerative. Our St. Louis retail merchants are the best advertisers in the country, and if our capitalists and some of our "eminently respectable" money-bags had a little of their push and energy St. Louis would be the greatest and most progressive city on the continent. The illumination of the Fourth street stores will be repeated to-morrow night.

ONE of Mr. GARFIELD'S earliest acts was to appoint Gen. HURLBURT, of Illinois, Minister to Peru. The appointment was conferred upon him on account of his temperance proclivities and his heroic service in opposition to the Third-term schemers. The aspect of affairs having changed somewhat, the Globe-Democrat clamors for HURLBURT'S recall. This means that no anti-GRANT men are to be left in Federal offices. Out of this spirit a magnificent war will come. A party faction that stands responsible for the murder of the President should not display too much greed for the offices. The GARFIELD Republicans are inclined to be resentful and on the slightest provocation they will fill the air with their lamentations and imprecations.

YESTERDAY the Legislature of Rhode Island, in special session, elected Mr. NELSON W. ALDRICH to succeed the late Mr. BURNSIDE in the Senate of the United States. Mr. ALDRICH is a wealthy and successful merchant, and he is at present representing the First District of his vest-pocket State in the Lower House of Congress. He resides in Providence, and Providence has been very kind to him. He has had some experience in State politics and legislation, but he is distinguished solely for his money. He is 40 years of age. Having no intellectuality beyond an ordinary member of a city council, he will answer very well as a voting automaton in the Senate for the use of the banks, the railways and other rich corporations. There is no trace of genius in his whiskers.

LOVERS of music who are now and will still be too poor to pay $20 for front seats when PATTI sings here may derive some consolation from knowing that there are poor people in Paris who are obliged to put up with five-minute snatches of the diva's song through telephone, for which they pay a franc and a half each. If the energetic libretto, photograph and opera-glass fiends who contribute their share to the entertainment of theater-goers of this country would combine their capital and brains to establish telephone connection with the Opera house in which PATTI will warble here, folks who are obliged to live within their incomes, especially if they are assessed for less than $100,000, may be able to make arrangements to take a yard of the melody at the rate of ten cents a demi-semi-quaver, or perhaps a larger quantity if the rate is a little lower.

A SALOON-KEEPER and local Democratic politician of some note, who occupies the front section of the building on Market street recently leased by the POST-DISPATCH, claims to have some sort of verbal lease with the former owner of the property. He is simply a tenant-at-will and he will be required to vacate on the 10th of this month. Knowing our anxiety to get possession of our property, he has made repeated overtures to us for a bonus. We have felt certain from the commencement that for a gift of $5,000 or $10,000 he would take up his beer kegs and march, but we have not regarded this self-infliction necessary. Some time ago our builders entered upon the rear of the premises and commenced constructing a press-room and composing-room, leaving the beer seller and his tramp patrons to the full enjoyment of their rights. Night before last a drunken mob threw down one of the green walls of our unfinished building. As but one man could have had an interest in this piece of malicious revenge, it is needless for us to name him. We simply wish to say to the police authorities that we expect them to punish this lawlessness and protect our workmen from future outrages at the hands of this gang of saloon-haunting outcasts. If we have interfered in any way with the rights of anybody we are answerable to the courts. The fact that we have not been called upon by legal process shows conclusively that we are proceeding in accordance with our privileges. We do not propose to be blackmailed and the police must see to it that mob law is not permitted to assert itself in this peaceful city.

WITH becoming dignity Mr. CONKLING kept away from the Republican State Convention in New York yesterday. It will be observed that since the first public announcement of Mr. GARFIELD'S critical condition he has remained in seclusion. The loss of such a leader was severely felt by the Stalwar wing in the late canvass and as a result the anti-CONKLING element largely predominated in the Convention yesterday. The threatening shadow of the new Administration did not deter the Half-breed gentlemen from carrying out their programme. They first chose MILLER, the pigmy successor of PLATT in the Senate, to the temporary Chairmanship of the convention, and then followed it up by making CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, the VANDERBILT lobby agent and legislative bribe-giver, permanent President. From first to last the enemies of ARTHUR and CONKLING controlled the Convention, and they even had the impudence to gloss over their open defiance by a resolution extending sympathy and support to the new President. We are very much mistaken in the character of the new President and his talented advisers if they do not embrace the earliest opportunity to resent the warlike performance of yesterday. They have it in their power at least to let the Democrats carry the State in November by simply pursuing the passive policy, and this they will be likely to do. We think the Empire State can be set down to the Democracy this year.

$100 REWARD $100!!!

The sum of one hundred dollars will be paid for information leading to the arrest and punishment of the parties engaged in pulling down the wall of the rear building of the POST-DISPATCH on Market street, now in course of erection. The reward will be paid promptly at the office of the POST-DISPATCH

PERSONAL.

—Orson Pratt is dead. Mr. Pratt was a numerous husband and a superfluous father.

—Intimate friends of Mrs. Marshal lo. Roberts, of New York, deny that she will be married to President Arthur.

—Anna Dickinson will "unmask her beauty" to the footlights and appear as Hamlet. "Oh, my prophetic soul, mine ankles!"

—Senator Wade Hampton will be a visitor at the North Carolina State Fair. And, of course, the Governor will whisper something in his ear.

—Herbert Spencer, it is rumored, is about to marry an American heiress. No doubt he does this simply as a speculation in the concrete.

—Since the capital of the country has been removed to the office of the Cincinnati Commercial everything is going on nicely. Mr. Halstead thus far has made an excellent President.

—"Senator Jones:"—Tennyson wrote "The Passing of Arthur," and it has no reference to the President. Just now Arthur is not passing. On the contrary, he seems inclined to play it alone.

—Jules Verne, the French author, is yachting in the Zuyder Zee, and the Dutchmen are delighted with the hope that he is planning a story dealing with their fast-disappearing lake, which they are reclaiming.

—Another of the sons of Guinness, the great stout brewer, has married into the peerage, Captain Guinness having married a daughter of the late Earl of Howth. They were joined at Howth, where her family have resided 700 years without intermission, and in direct succession. Her brother is thirtieth Baron.

The Lindell Railroad.

ST. LOUIS, October 5, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Having ample proof of your ability and disposition to aid the masses in any movement calculated to better their condition, permit me to protest against the injustice of the Lindell Railway Company towards its patrons. About ten days ago I boarded a Washington avenue car intending to ride to Finney and Vandeventer avenues. Preferring a long car to a bobtail, I rode in the former to Ware avenue and then took the next bobtail going west. To my great surprise I had to pay a second fare. It is my opinion that the Municipal Assembly granted the Lindell Railway Company the right to extend its line from Washington and Ware avenues to Vandeventer and Finney avenues on condition that no extra fare will be charged over the extension. Perhaps the greedy corporation may advance the technical argument that they have a line of cars running from Fourth street to the end of their line and that I could have taken one of those cars for one fare. To this I answer, as long as the employes of the road knew that I paid my fare it should be immaterial to them or the company whether I rode in the through car or changed for the through car at Ware avenue. I contend that the Lindell Railway Company has no right to prevent any of its passengers who may reside west of Ware avenue from riding in a long car to the said avenue if they feel disposed to do so, and then taking the bobtail to their destination, without an extra fare. If the company persists in violating its ordinance, I propose to test the matter in the courts, and if the sufferers of the "West End" will keep a memorandum of the number of times they have been mulcted out of an extra fare for daring to enjoy the comforts of a ride in the Stephenson double duplex springer to Ware avenue, and be prompt to respond when called on, I promise that the double fare business will stop "in no time."

Respectfully, JNO. S. G.

An Insurance Muddle.

ST. LOUIS, October 7.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I notice in your valuable and fearless paper of yesterday an article in which the names of Peck and Lewis are mentioned in connection with the St. Louis Life Insurance Company, and having a policy in the company upon which I paid in premiums some $1,300, beside some considerable trouble in having them filed, proven up, etc., I would inquire through you why it is that policy-holders have to wait so long for the pittance they will get (or more probably not get). Is it that the per cent of assets may be frittered away among a lot of lawyers and officers rather than give it to those to whom it rightfully belongs? Is the whole thing in the hands of parties whose only interest is in dragging the affair along till everything is absorbed?

Give your subscriber and a few hundred other parties in my fix your idea, for I see that on matters that concern the public you generally speak out pretty plainly and to the point.

Yours, X. Y. Z.

Ignoring the Colored Man.

ST. LOUIS, October 4.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Being born and bred an old-time Abolitionist and a Republican from principle even before the organization of the party, I want to ask of the manager and leaders of the Republican party, is it true as charged (in the last copy of the Advance, a paper edited and published by colored men in this city) that when the great national heart of this great nation was throbbing with the impulse of deepest sorrow and sympathy over the death of our beloved President, that in holding our mass memorial meeting to give expressions of our sympathy our Republican Mayor, even after having his attention called to the fact, studiously ignored and refused to extend to the colored man the same privileges that he so cordially extended to all nationalities and races to join in and mingle their tears and sorrows with us. And if there was any party or race that was more indebted to Garfield for his life-long efforts in their behalf than the sons of Africa, we do not know them. I ask, therefore, is this the kind of reward and treatment that the Republican party is giving to this people who helped us to secure our rights and liberty in civil war, and who have enabled us to carry the Republican party through successive victories? May they not reasonably stop and inquire "Who is my neighbor?"

A House Rent Question.

ST. LOUIS, October 2, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I own a house and live down stairs. I rent the up stairs to another family. Is it customary under these circumstances to put in a gas meter for them at my expense? I hope it will not be encroaching too much on your valuable time for you to give me an answer to the above and oblige a constant reader.

Very truly, J. A. S.

[It is not a part of your business to furnish a meter. The Gas Company ought to do that and charge for the use of it.—ED. P. D.]

Didn't Like Prentiss in 1880.

ST. LOUIS, October 6, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Noticing in your issue of the 5th a certificate for Prentiss, I would like to say that that person is wrong. Mr. Prentiss was very careful with favored ones, but for others they were left to do the best they could. Very few of the boys of 1880 liked Prentiss.

President Arthur's Cabinet.

Washington Special to Cincinnati Gazette.

President Arthur has not yet fully decided as to his Cabinet appointments, as he has been compelled to give much of his time lately to the disposition of his private affairs. This much can be stated with positiveness, he has assured Postmaster-General James and Secretary Hunt that they can remain in his Cabinet as long as they desire to retain their positions, and that he wishes them to remain in the positions they now hold. Both of them will remain.

Secretary Blaine will retire as early as he really wishes to do. The story that Mr. Blaine wishes to remain in the Cabinet is not true. This was stated to a Western Associated Press agent to-day by a very prominent Republican, who has he closest personal relations with Mr. Blaine. This gentleman said that a few days after President Garfield's death he was in New York, where he met Gen. Grant and that conversation naturally was about President Garfield's death and Arthur's elevation to the Presidency. This gentleman said he was much pleased with Arthur's inaugural, which was just out, it being the very day that Gen. Arthur took the oath of office at the capital; that he believed President Arthur had the material in him to make a good President. Grant replied that those who doubted it would be mistaken. Arthur was the equal in every respect of Garfield, except in oratory, and in personal independence and in singleness of purpose was his superior. Many of Garfield's appointments were politically bad, serious mistakes, while some of them showed the boldest ingratitude. The worst were those distated by Blaine, whose appointment in the Cabinet was the first and greatest blunder of the series. When this friend of Blaine met the Secretary in Cleveland he told him of this conversation with Grant, whereupon another friend was called in and the words of Grant were repeated. "Now," said Blaine, "do you still advise me to remain in the Cabinet, should Arthur desire it?" "Only until you can leave without appearing to do so from personal pique, or in a manner which would injure the party," said his friend. Mr. Blaine's feeling was then plainly expressed that he had never contemplated remaining. He said the scene of Garfield's death was ever present with him, and the long vigil waiting for the inevitable, the death. The last look upon the dead and the bringing of the remains to his last-resting place had given him a mental and physical shock which only months of rest could cure. He expressed kindly feeling for Arthur, who, he was sure, was anxious to call Garfield's friends his own.

An Arkansas Tragedy.

Memphis Special to Chicago Times.

September 23 Dr. Howard Edmunds, of Drew county, Arkansas, was convicted at Warren, Bradley county, of the murder of Miss Sallie Watson, his cousin and sister-in-law. Edmunds boldly boasted that he killed her because he knew her to be enceinte, and further developments would cause trouble in the family, and he wanted to get her out of the way. Her father was one of the most prominent citizens of Drew county. Edmunds committed the murder July 1, by decoying the girl from her home into the woods, where she was found. The murderer was arrested upon suspicion and put in jail, where he confessed all. While in confinement in the Drew county jail some of the enterprising citizens of that county met together, and, without any passion or noise, one of them arose and said: "Boys, let's hang the s— of — —." That was the only speech made, and all of them began to saunter over to the jail, when an idea struck another member of the gang.

"I think we'd better give the hound a chance," said he. "I move we play seven-up for it."

The novelty of this suggestion captured the crowd. A halt was called, several decks of cards proffered, one selected, and two men were chosen to represent Edmunds and two to play for the mob.

It so happened that the two men who were playing for Edmunds were experts at seven-up. One of them was a newspaper man, whose name I will not mention for fear of imperiling my life. They played along very evenly at first. The crowd grouped all around them, considerably more interested now than they had been at the prospect of a mere lynching. The game continued even for some time, until the newspaper man made three points and won the man's life and the game. The crowd were considerably disgusted, but they consoled themselves with the thought that they had seen a good game of seven-up.

The sentiment in Drew county was very strong against Edmunds, and he got a change of venue to Bradley county, where it was expected a jury could be bought at favorable terms. The result was totally unexpected. Edmunds has not yet been sentenced.

President Arthur's Brother Married.

From the National Republican.

Col. Wm. Arthur, Major and Paymaster, United States Army, was married last Monday, September 26, at the garrison chapel at Governor's Island, New York Harbor, to Miss Laura Bouvier, daughter of Leopold Bouvier. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. C. Goodwin, post chaplain at Gen. Hancock's headquarters, in the presence of a large number of friends. Col. Arthur served during the war in a New York regiment of infantry, and was breveted for gallantry in action at the battles of Spottsylvania and Ream's Station, and afterward served in the Third United States Artillery until he was promoted by President Grant to Paymaster in July, 1875.

Prepared for the Worst.

From the Courier-Journal.

The President, having settled up his private business, will now begin the execution of his duties as Chief Executive. He has sent a first-class French cook to Washington from New York and he evidently means to live well. He knows what drafts will be made upon his physical strength.

Jones Won't Fill the Bill.

From the Chicago Tribune.

As Senator from Nevada Mr. John P. Jones will do very well, but when he attempts to pose as a modern Richelieu the effect is not a pleasant one. The contract is too extensive—even for Jones.

All Peaceful.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

The Princess Louise sails for Canada in a few days. This does not look as if Lorne was going right back to old Scotland.

The Indiana Saver.

From the Chicago Times.

Indiana wants a representative in the Cabinet. How would Dorsey, "The Savior of Indiana," do?

FAIR NOTES.

A Ramble Through the Art, Photographic and Floral Departments.

The Art Hall was to-day quite a center of attraction. The Annex looks, however, more than ever like a side show. But there are some good pictures in the Annex despite the posters. Kray's "Water Nymphs" represent two beautiful, nearly nude females on a wild, wave-washed rock in the sea. The spray is flying around them and the whole scene is very effective and pretty. Kray's "Lurlei" hangs next to the "Water Nymphs" and people who have seen it already in Pettes & Leathe's window will renew the acquaintance with pleasure. The Undine is seated on her high rock above the Rhine, with her wild hair about her shoulders, looking down upon the spectator and luring him into the whirlpool with her weird beauty.

The Roll Call of the Victims of the Reign of Terror in the Prison of the Conciergerie, by C. L. Muller, is the most ambitious work in the hall. It contains a great many faces, all of which are said to be faithful likenesses. The despairing pose of the figures is one of the best things at the Fair. Bachereau's Last Hours of Francis of Lorraine, Duke of Guise, is a historical work of much interest. It combines a high degree of art with a most interesting subject, and the result is a picture which will repay long study. The balance of the hall is taken up chiefly with a complete set of Rembrandt's etchings, which, while they are of interest as curiosities, are by no means pretty or attractive. If Rembrandt's magic name were not attached to them they would not attract much attention. Some very pretty tile work is also shown in this department. In the main hall the stream of visitors was steady during the day and a silver harvest of dimes was reaped by the promoters.

THE PHOTOGRAPHS.

The old cotton headquarters, which has been pressed into service for the photographers, seems to be ingeniously calculated to throw as little light as possible upon the exhibits John Scholten, whose displays are at the further end of the hall, is suffering from this cause, and justice can hardly be done to his elegant display in the gloom in which it is shrouded. Quite a number of splendid cabinet and imperial photographs are in Scholten's cases, which form a sort of a picture gallery of prominent St. Louisans.

The belles of the town seem rather to affect Fitz Guerin, whose cases are full of the prettiest faces imaginable. J. W. Fischer divides the gloom in the end of the hall with Scholten and has a fine display. Strauss, Benecke and Cramer, all of whom have fine displays, have captured the best lighted part of the room, which by the way is entirely without skylights. The photographic exhibit used heretofore to be made in the annex of Art Hall, but, as indicated above, that building has been seized for the art display.

THE FLOWERS.

The floral display is drawing very well to-day. The hall, which is that formerly used by the Kennel Club for its bench shows, was crowded all morning. There are only four exhibitors, Michel, Young, Jordan and Schray, but as they are all professional florists, keyed up to a warm competition with each other, the displays are simply elegant. A constant rich perfume hangs heavily in this hall, a fact which accounts for its attractions. The odor is noticeable some distance away from the building, and is composed of course of the combined essences of a hundred different sweet smelling plants.

THE JOLLITIES.

Large audiences are attracted to the Library Hall this week by the Jollities in their great musical burlesque "The Electrical Doll." The drill scene is a special feature, eliciting roars of laughter. The music is bright and sparkling and the fun flows fast throughout the amusing performance. The Jollities will remain at the Library Hall for the week.

FIRE-WORKS.

The Unexcelled Fire-works Company of New York will give one of their celebrated Coney Island displays of fire-works this evening at the Sportsmen's Park, Grand avenue, near the Fair Grounds. There will be many new and beautiful effects introduced, and it will be a grand nocturnal exhibition.

This is Enterprise.

Messrs. M. N. Elzea & Son, proprietors of the St. James Stables, Nos. 108 and 110 South Tenth street, which were recently damaged by fire, have succeeded in building up, refitting and getting their establishment into shape again, and are now ready to supply their former patrons with buggies, carriages and horses, and to receive horses to board. The Messrs. Elzea lost fifteen vehicles by the late fire, but they have replaced every one of them, and their facilities for meeting a heavy demand for teams and rigs are now better than ever. The Messrs. Elzea have displayed a great deal of enterprise in getting their stables ready so soon after their almost complete destruction, and in this respect, as in many others, these gentlemen have shown themselves worthy citizens of one of the most enterprising cities on the continent. The new stables are complete in every respect, being supplied with every modern improvement and thoroughly ventilated according to the latest and best methods.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS.

Probable Candidates at the Approaching Election—Presidency of the Board.

As the term for the October elections in the School Board approaches, the excitement thickens and the candidates begin to multiply. Elections are to be held in the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Ninth, Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-second and Twenty-third wards. In each of these bailiwicks there are from two to five aspirants who are willing to take upon themselves the arduous duties of School-Board life, knowing full well that at every session they are likely to be called a liar, or worse, by some brother Director. In the Second Ward Dr. Clopton wants to be his own successor, although his enemies say that they would not be surprised if a man named Sherrick got the Doctor's seat. The race will be close.

In the Third Ward it now looks probable that Schweickhart will be returned. There is strong opposition to Mr. S., but no man seems likely to be settled upon to lead it.

The Fourth Ward has more candidates than any other. Walsh, whose term expires, is going back, if he can. Mike Glynn, who formerly represented the ward and left the board under a cloud a few years ago, will take the place if he can get it. Pat Brennan and several others are all going to take a hand in the row, and the fight will be extremely lively.

The vacancy in the Fifth Ward occurs because of the resignation of Dr. Spinzig, the anti-vaccine orator. Henry Troll, a saloon-keeper, is now most prominently spoken of, and a man named John Mail is being noised around by his friends. Troll has the pole, however.

John A. Harroll is entered to run against Gerber, the present incumbent from the Seventh Ward, and those who know say that he will beat the latter very badly. In the Ninth, Mr. C. O. Twining will go back if he is elected.

Mr. Vortriede, book keeper of the Anheuser Brewing Company, will give Twining a tussle, but the latter is solid with Leo Rassieur, the Board's attorney, who is said to be a tower of strength in the ward. Twining's chances are good, although those who talk of Vortriede are confident.

Director Brocker will run again in the Fourteenth, and will be met on the tented field by Mr. Schroeder, a book-keeper, and Mr. Baumiller, who are said to have good chances. In the Eighteenth Ward the fight will be somewhat of a melee.

Frank W. Peebles, who at present represents the board, wants to go back, but he will have to fight the Caldwell men very hard, and the latter say that they will take his scalp and dangle it at their belts. Charlie Slaybick and Judge Valiant are both prominently mentioned, although neither of them has announced positively that he will run. Mr. M. J. Murphy, a former member, has been solicited to allow the use of his name, but has not yet consented. Within a week the man who will oppose Peebles will be known. In the Twenty-second Ward the prophets say that Dr. Gilwee will never get back again, but they declare that Schubert has a dead sure thing in the Twenty-third.

It should be borne in mind that none of the gentlemen mentioned above have officially declared their intention of running. They are given as those who are most prominently spoken of in connection with the matter.

The fight for the presidency of the new board will run all through the election. If Mr. Murphy should be elected from the Eighteenth Ward he will be a formidable rival of Mr. Judson, and his friends say that he will have a walk-over for the chair. If Murphy does not get in Judge Dailey will try for the place, but with slight chances. Dr. Hill also wants it, but can only get it by a miracle. Judson's friends say they fear nobody but Murphy.

THE Pittsburg Gazette of Wednesday says: Capt. W. W. Coulson, of the big steamer Wyoming, was in the city yesterday morning sporting a fine plug hat. The Wyoming is laid up nine miles above Wheeling, and will be first to arrive and load for St. Louis as soon as there is water.

BUSINESS along the steamboat landing to-day was quiet, but it will pick up and be active after this week. From present indications the route to the sea will be open all winter. Should this be the case, the barge lines will have all they can do, notwithstanding the short crop. What there is to go will come this way, and there will be plenty of grain moving as soon as prices drop, which is only a matter of a brief period. Taken altogether, the outlook for the opening season is very good.

PITTSBURG, October 4: The river continues to rise slowly, with water 8 inches below the old marks—a rise in all of 6½ inches. Cloudy and rain. Prospect favorable for a rise soon, although it will require a good deal of rain to bring it about. All the small streams are very low and many springs dried up. While it is important to get the coal out, many of the coal men express the wish that there will be no rise until the coffer-dam at Davis Island is gotten out of the way, which it is thought can be done by the latter part of this month if work is not interrupted in the meantime. Capt. H. B. Cock, of the steamer John L. Rhoads, was down from Brownsville to-day. His boat is laid up at St. Louis. Delegates have not yet been appointed to attend the St. Louis convention.

Shot and Killed.

Yesterday afternoon at 12:30 George Clark was shot and instantly killed by Louis St. James at the southern limits of East St. Louis. St. James did not like Clark, and when he came home yesterday noon and found the latter at his house he ordered him out. Clark left and St. James followed him, calling him all manner of ugly names. Clark turned about and insisted that such abuse must be stopped. Then St. James drew a hatchet, but a moment later entered the house and returned with his gun—a rifle cut down to within a foot of the stock. Clark still stood before the house facing the door as the enraged man came out, and without any delay St. James deliberately shot Clark, the charge entering his left breast, killing him instantly. The dead body was taken to Mirz's livery stable, and Constable Ben Godin arrested the murderer and took him to the station house. Both men were colored, Clark being a boy of 18, and St. James 60 years old. The Coroner's inquest held St. James guilty of murder, and he will go to Belleville to await the action of the grand jury.

Creve Cœur Lake will be the point of attraction next Sunday afternoon. More than ordinary interest is felt by local oarsmen in the races that will take place at that time on this favorite course. Parker and Pattillo will first measure themselves in a single scull race of three miles with the turn. The money, $500 a side, has already been deposited, and nothing but the most unfavorable weather will prevent the race. The second contest of the day will be the feature. The Australian Trickett, and Plaisted, of Boston, are to meet. This race, like the first, will be a single scull, three miles with the turn, at $500 a side. Trickett is already at Creve Cœur training for the struggle, and Plaisted will arrive in the city this evening. Arrangements have been made by the managers of the Creve Cœur Railway for the accommodation of the large concourse of people who will attend.

Military Parade and Review—Description of the Armory—How the Money Was Raised.

The corner-stone of the new Armory to be occupied by the Police Reserve and National Guard regiments, which organizations unite on November 17, on Pine street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth, was laid this morning with impressive ceremonies, and with the contingent feature of an imposing parade of the militia. Sistinguished State and city officials and many of our leading citizens graced the occasion with their presence.

THE MILITARY PARADE.

The hour of starting the parade was fixed for 8:30 o'clock, but the soldiers were slow in assembling at their armory and it was not until 9:30 that the Police Reserve regiment arrived from the Four Courts at Armory Hall, escorting Governor Thomas T. Crittenden. The line of march south on Fourth street to Walnut, to Fifth, to Washington avenue, to Eighteenth street, to Pine, where the new armory is located, was thronged by admiring citizens and strangers. The alignment was perfect, and the parade one of the most successful ever given. Brigadier-General Squires was in command, accompanied by his staff, being followed by Col. Geo. J. Chapman and staff and the National Guard regiment of eight companies, the Bain Zouaves, the Police Reserves of six companies, and then the battery of the National Guard, with two three-inch rifled cannon and two Gatling guns. The detail of the parade and the order in which it marched was as follows:

The St. Louis Light Guard marched in command of Lieut. Frank P Halliday.

AT THE ST. LOUIS CLUB.

The programme for the day was so arranged that the members of the Executive Committee, contributors to the armory fund, city officials, the Mayor and other invited guests should be escorted from the St. Louis Club-House, on Washington avenue, to the armory. There, assembled on the steps to await the arrival of the military Mayor Ewing, Comptroller Adreon, Auditor Smith, Treasurer Merrell, President of the Council Parker, Delegate Hausman, City Collector N. C. Hudson; Brigadier-General Van Cleve, of Macon City; Maj. Newman, Quartermaster on Gen. Van Cleve's staff; Maj. Gray, of the Second Regiment, National Guard; Capt. H. D. B. The other gentlemen formed in line immediately following the carriages and preceding the police reserve and marched to the armory.

THE CEREMONIES.

The procession was very late in reaching the building, arriving there long after 10 o'clock. When the soldiers had marched past the southeast corner of the building, where the stone was in position, the invited guests separated from the procession and took seats upon the platform. The following gentlemen among others occupied the chairs: Gov. Crittenden, Mayor Ewing, Hon. John Hogan, Gerard B. Allen, Henry Hitchcock; Charles S. Greeley; R. Graham Frost, M. C., Judge Advocate General of State; Col. Leigh O. Knapp, Adjutant Inspector; Dr. L. J. Pim, Surgeon-General; Joseph W. Branch, John Elliott; Chas. E. Hasbrook, Kansas City, Lieutenant Colonel, Aid-de-Camp; Brig.-Gen. Wm. M. Van Cleeve, of the Northern District of Missouri; M. J. Lippmann, John H. Maxon, Rev. Dr. I. G. Wilson, Judge Speck, John G. Priest, Comptroller Adreon, W. A. Hargadine, John R. Lionberger, E. A. Hitchcock, Hy. Newman, Lyndon A. Smith, Gen A. J. Smith, E. G. Obear, Collector N. C. Hudson, N. G. Larimore, City Treasurer J. S. Merrell, Commodore Lourey, Col. J. L. Torrey. Dwight Treadway, James McGrath, Wm. F. Edwards and others. When the gentlemen were seated Mr. John R. Lionberger stepped to the front and announced that the ceremonies would be opened with prayer. Rev. Geo. C. Betts, of Trinity Episcopal Church, stepped forward and invoked the blessing of the Almighty upon the Armory and all who have contributed to its erection, on the President of the United States, the Governor of the State and all parties whose office it is to preserve law and order.

At the close of the prayer, Mr. Lionberger introduced Gerard B. Allen as the next speaker. Mr. Allen said: I wish only to state that the merchants, manufacturers and business men of the city, recognizing the many sacrifices of time, money and personal comfort made by the different military organizations, raised a fund as a partial offering of thanks. This fund was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of Messrs. John R. Lionberger, Dwight Treadway, W. A. Hargadine, E. A. Hitchcock, Chas. Speck and myself. This committee finally decided that the best plan was to build this armory large enough for the purposes of all the companies. The fund will fall several thousand dollars short of the amount required, but the committee have laid the foundation and let out the plans, having full reliance in the business men of the city, who have never failed when properly applied to for any object like this."

Mr. Allen then introduced His Excellency Gov. Crittenden, who spoke as follows, after the military salute had been given by the troops in front of the stand:

THE GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: The laying of this corner-stone marks another era in the history of St. Louis. The liberality of some of the broad-minded citizens of this city has in the last decade shown to the world that they understand and appreciate the demands of the age and are willing to contribute their money for the advancement of health, science, art, trade, morality and education. St. Louis—being the chief city in the Mississippi valley—should have in its limits constructed, in the process of construction or in contemplation every public, commercial and eleemosynary institution, every library, every art gallery, every place of refined and elevated culture, and last, though not at all times least, every means of defense necessary to the comfort, pleasure and protection of its increasing population. Civilization and the impulses of humanity demand these great desiderata, and those rulers and humanitarians are wisest who provide them places of rest as well as places of defense. You have a great population here, composed of all classes of society, bad men, bad women, restless men, discontented men, as well as good men, and the cheapest means to govern, manage and crush that population is to let it know that the enlightened public have more interest in their welfare than fear of their desperation, but at the same time let it be known that if softer means will not command their respect and submission to law, then, beside the art gallery, the hospital, church and free dispensary, stands in modest silence the armory of your city, which is intended in the hands of your philanthropic citizens to be the friend of every man who is the friend of law, order, good society, and the enemy of every man who is not. It should be considered a school of education as well as a means of self-defence, a friend and not an enemy to society. No society is endangered by a citizen soldiery. Such soldiers have in all ages been the bulwarks of republican institutions. The burgers and farmers of Athens succored at Marathon not only their own liberties but a future for art, science and civilization through the world. The happiest and most splendid days of Rome, when most loved at home and most respected abroad, were when her armies were formed of citizens in peace who became soldiers in war: whose prowess bore her eagles in triumph to the utmost verge of conquest. The brilliant pages of Motley tell us, almost in the language of poetry and song, how the citizen soldiers founded the Dutch Republic in wisdom and strength, in defiance of the mighty armies of trained soldiers of Philip of Spain. But why go to the repose of history for such lessons? We have them in our own native land. The farmers of Massachusetts and of Virginia, of the little compact of thirteen States, without money and the necessary habiliments of war, with only prowess, God and their country to inspire them to desperate deeds of valor, declared through their own peerless representatives that "we were, and of right ought to be a free and independent people," and, with no rulers but God and Washington, gained that independence, and to-day our flag is known and respected on every land and sea of the habitable globe. Who loves not his own native and adopted land? Who loves not those rude and untrained soldiers who left us such a heritage? There is no danger, I again assert, in the citizen soldier. In all our wars such soldiers have rallied promptly and enthusiastically to their country's call, and have borne their flag to the fore front of every battlefield, and have died as they lived, in submission to law. Sir, the citizen in the common avocations of life is made a better citizen by being a trained soldier. It teaches him method, organization, system, obedience and promptness. It alike strengthens the body and the mind, and gives that vitality, that elasticity to each, which makes the soldier, the man, the handsomest piece of intellectual machinery that was ever conceived. Of such a man we can well say, how wonderful is man; I have now occupied my allotted time, but before doing so, let me, in the name of the State, thank those true, noble, liberal, broad-minded men, who are constructing this building from their own private means for the important purpose for which it is this day dedicated. They have done their duty well, they are doing their duty well, and the future will so attest. Such men are the friends of humanity, of the homeless as well as of those who dwell in decorated palaces, and are the men who lay deep the foundations of society, law, order and morality. Such liberality will have its own reward. You have in your midst already a well drilled soldiery who are an ornament to your city. It is composed of the rich and poor alike, who in times of danger and of peace meet on a common plane and are brothers in arms, with but one great inspiring motive—security to life, liberty, property. In times of danger they are the friends of law and good society, and when called have respodned both with an alacrity and determination that commanded the respect of the good and bad alike. Such a body deserves the confidence and admiration of society and should have a rendezvous, a resting-place, a home for their arms, such as this will be, where they can assemble in times of peace as well as in times of danger, and prepare for any emergency. May such a citizen soldiery be your bulwark in the future as they have been in the past, and stand as firm in your support and defense as this corner-stone will stand in support of this armory.

I thank you, citizen soldiers, for your attendance here to-day. Friends and fellow-citizens, you who are pursuing the peaceful avocations of life, when you are called upon to point out a monument of the progress of your city, when you are called upon to point out the friend of every class, point to this armory, for the building is the bulwark of law and order, and whatever is the friend of law and order is the friend of rich and poor alike.

LAYING THE STONE.

At the close of the address, while the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," the Governor stepped down from the platform and took up the trowel, which was placed on the corner-stone. On the north side of the stone were the names of the committee, Messrs. John R. Lionberger, Dwight Tredway, Gerard B. Allen, W. A. Hargadine, E. A. Hitchcock and Chas. Speck. The east front of the stone was inscribed as follows: "Building Committee: Col. Ed. Meier, Capt. J. F. Coyle, Sergeant E. S. Abadie."

The stone was elevated and Mr. Miller, the architect of the building, produced the box which was to be deposited in the receptacle. It contained the latest copies of the latest editions of the POST-DISPATCH and the other daily papers, a list of the contributors to the building, architects, contractors and sub-contractors, a copy of the Spectator containing the cut of the building, a history of the organization and purposes of the Police Reserves, the National Guards, the Artillery and the St. Louis Light Guard, with a cut of the building projected by the Light Guard, which constitutes part of the present structure. Along with these documents was the illuminated programme of the last pageant of the Veiled Prophets. This box was placed in the cavity, and the Governor, who held a handsome bouquet in his left hand, proceeded to strew the mortar around it, assisted by Architect Miller and Mr. Thos. Keily, one of the superintendents. After the Governor had spread a few trowelsfull he handed over the instrument, the work was completed by the others, and the stone was lowered into its place. Gov. Crittenden tapped it with the hammer, levelled it properly and the ceremony was complete.

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Lionberger then introduced his Honor Mayor Ewing, who made a brief but pointed address. He applauded the public spirit of the citizens who had begun the work. He hoped that others would come forward with their usual liberality in finishing the edifice. As representative of the city government, the Mayor gave the whole scheme his hearty indorsement.

MR. JOS. W. BRANCH

was the next speaker, and delivered a most interesting address. Turning to the military he said:

"GENLTEMEN—The meaning of this morning's exercises is that a large number of citizens wanted to show that they honored you. I am here to-day as a member of the Police Reserves and a representative of that body. Otherwise nothing would have induced me to address this audience, for I am more used to the ring of the anvil than to the business of public speaking. Remember that the people give you this, and that you are of the people, the bulwarks of civil and religious liberty. Unfortunately we sometimes have commo-

SEXTON'S HOSE.

The Fire Chief Orders His Own Quality and Buys of What Companies He Pleases.

Commissioner Garesche Advertises Simply for What Mr. Sexton Wants.

To all the complaints that are made about the inefficiency of the Fire Department Chief Sexton's allies have two stereotyped replies, One is that the water supply is insufficient and the other that the quality of hose furnished is inferior and will burst at critical moments.

In answer to the first, Water Commissioner Whitman expressed his opinion to the POST-DISPATCH a few days ago, stating emphatically that the water supply was amply sufficient in the central part of the city, where the complaints were most general.

In an interview in Monday's Globe-Democrat, John Lindsay, First Assistant Chief of the Fire Department, takes up the cudgel for Sexton, and disposes of the hose question in the following words: "When Sexton used to buy the hose it was of a better grade, but now the purchases are made by a Commissioner of Supplies."

A POST-DISPATCH reporter called upon Mr. Garesche, Commissioner of Supplies, showed him the above remark and asked him what he had to say about it. In reply, the Commissioner reached for the last requisition for hose, signed by H. Clay Sexton, Chief of the Fire Department, and G. W. Tennille, Secretary, and approved by the Mayor.

The document particularizes that the hose shall be of the "best quality," and specifies six manufacturers whose hose only will be considered. "Now, here is the advertisement I inserted in the papers on Saturday, September 24," said Mr. Garesche.

"You see I quote the exact words of the Chief's paper, mentioning every manufacturer whom he names. The only change is that where he asks for hose of the 'best quality,' I change these words to 'very best extra quality,' which has brought out a better grade than we have had before. I advertise for just what Mr. Sexton asks, and have nothing whatever to do with the buying of the hose. I simply award the contracts to the lowest bidder."

"Is this the case every time hose is supplied?"

"Yes, sir. I am governed in by advertisement by a requisition similar to the one I have shown you and signed by Mr. Sexton."

It will be seen from the above that the department can hardly suffer because, as Mr. Lindsay puts it, "the purchases are made by the Commissioner of Supplies," and that Sexton gets what Sexton orders. He even specifies the rubber companies whose hose will be accepted in filling the bids.

Rossi, the Actor.

From the New York Sun.

Mr. Ernesto Rossi, the Italian tragedian, arrived in the steamship France yesterday, after a stormy voyage of thirteen days. As seen in his Everett House rooms two hours afterwards he was a gentleman who would have shown his height of five feet ten more plainly if he had not been so thick, who looked ten years younger than the 52 which he is, whose round, handsome, jovial face would have passed for German or French quite as quickly as Italian, and whose hearty manner was wholly free from affectation. He was accompanied by his brother, Enrico, and Salvini's young son Alexander. Rossi speaks perfectly the little English he speaks at all. "Wait month," he said, laughingly, and stopped. After a moment of perplexity he added slowly, "Then—speak—all—English." He meant, as he explained in Italian, that he expected to learn very rapidly to speak English while here among Americans. Strangely enough the few English words he utters have scarcely any foreign accent.

"I am to appear with an American company, though myself speaking Italian." Rossi said, in his own tongue, "in the same manner that Salvini did. This polyglot style of performance is not new to me, for I have employed it with a German company. In my last engagement in Berlin, however, not long before sailing for this country, the performances were entirely in Italian. I am to begin in Boston with 'King Lear' next Monday; but my stage manager, Francisco Mazzei, has conducted thorough rehearsals with the company, several of whom have had experience in this sort of work with Salvini. On the last day of October I appear at Booth's Theater. A tour of the principal cities will follow. I shall act Hamlet, Othello and Macbeth, besides Lear, and possibly several other than Shakspearean parts. I have acted in America before, you know, and trust that Americans have not altogether forgotten me. However that may be, I have cherished numerous pleasant memories of America, and am curious to see what changes have been wrought since I was here. This is a great country. You think so, and so do we Europeans; though very few of us know what it is made of. I shall enjoy my tour—that is a foregone conclusion; but will my audiences? You say 'Oh, yes,' Are you a sure prophet? I hope so, my friend—I hope so." Rossi has a mellow, musical voice, and his speech is pleasant. He does not gesticulate much in ordinary conversation, nor shrug his shoulders, but practices as though unconsciously the difficult stage art of standing easily still. He wore on this occasion plain dark clothes of ordinary cut, his black hair was not long enough to be odd, and the only uncommon thing in his dress was a shirt collar with very long ends turned down over his vest. A gold watch guard was stretched across his wide breast, and eyeglasses dangled from his buttonhole.

A Bachelor Diplomat.

From the New York Sun.

Lord Lyons, who has now for so long represented England in Paris, has never shown any disposition to perpetuate his peerage by matrimony. No affair of the heart is on record in his case. His only brother, a gallant officer, died in the Crimea a bachelor. Albert, the first Lord Lyons, was a distinguished naval officer. It is little likely that he would have had so good a chance of proving his superiority had not his daughter, though without beauty or fortune, had the good luck to win the heart of the first peer in the realm. The lady was a Protestant, but she soon conformed to her husband's creed, and became exceedingly devout, bringing up her children in the strictest observance of the ancient faith, whereas her husband's mother (a sister of the first Duke of Sutherland) had retained to the last her Protestant faith. When Lord Lyons was in Washington there was attached to his staff a gentleman named Sheffield, son of a wealthy baronet, directly descended from a natural son of Sheffield, Duke of Buckinghamshire, from whom George III. bought Buckingham Palace. This Mr. George Sheffield soon fell greatly into the good graces of Lord Lyons, and was appointed his private secretary. From that hour they have been inseparable companions. Mr. Sheffield has a special aptitude for economic detail, and the whole of the domestic arrangements of the splendid establishment maintained by the British Ambassador at Paris are confided to him. It is largely due to his love of the gastronomic art that the English embassy holds the highest rank in point of dinners.

An Ark Built in Fear of Another Deluge.

From the Columbus Enquirer.

A few miles below Otho, Ala., there is an old negro named Moses, who claims he had a revelation from the Lord, in which he received information that the world would again be destroyed by water. He was so convinced that the destruction would be by water that he at once began the work of building an ark. He has been thus engaged for several months, and the result of his labors may be easily seen from the river. This ark is very unlike the representations of the one built by Father Noah, and would doubtless notwithstand any severe gales, such as might be expected in a cruise of forty days and nights. This oddly constructed vessel or house is placed on a high hill, ready for the rising water. It is composed of several apartments, about five feet wide and ten feet long, which are placed on top of each other. Each has a small portico, and spires with feathers as ornaments. Approaching the dwelling of the negro one has to pass through a very elaborately decorated arbor, over the entrance of which are the words: "Welcome, Peace, Rest and Happiness."

ELECTRIC WONDERS.

Some of the Beauties of the Electrical Lamp Exhibition in Paris.

Paris Correspondence London News.

The other night I passed three hours at the Palais de l'Industrie. My visual nerves were no more tired than if I had been staying on a fine summer day under the shade of lime trees. Two great jets of light diverge from the round windows above the great door of the exhibition towards the Arch of Triumph and the Place de la Concorde. The tree tops on which some of the rays fall look as if silvered over. The obelisk of Luxor might be a pile of snow, to judge of it from its whiteness. It is five hundred meters from the lamp projecting the mass of light, which appears like the tail of a comet, and is so strong that, standing in the Place de la Concorde, any one learned in Egyptian hieroglyphics could decipher those on the obelisk. Mr. Godell's electoral addresses at the corner of the Rue de Boetie (formerly Rue de l'Oratoire) can be read also. Siemens' lights are used in the grand vestibule. They are set off by the artistic beauty of the lusters, and they very rarely oscillate or go out. Jamin's lights blink a good deal, and Jablochkoff's a little. Blinking is more or less the defects of all the arc lights. Intellectually one may not be aware of this defect, but the weariness of the eye tells of it. Siemens, I think, is the most successful manufacturer of lamps made according to the arc system. Werdeman comes close on his heels; indeed, he treads upon them. The nave is bright as bright can be at the nocturnal exhibition. Anything more exquisitely beautiful than the general view it is impossible to conceive. A lighthouse with a revolving lamp stands in the middle. It has a revolving lamp with red, blue, green, purple and orange glasses. The patches of colored light which it projects on the cornice of the nave seem to march processionally round it. There is a calmness of general effect, a mildness as of moonbeams, a light as searching as comes from the sun at noon, and a coolness of tint as well as of atmosphere. None of the hues in old Gobelins tapestries are lost or dimmed. Pictures, of which there are all that were purchased by the last Salon, have been left, in order to test the value of the different systems of electric lighting. Flowers appear to be in sympathy with Queen Electricity. The tall palm or tropical fern looks to peculiar advantage when she is holding her court at the Palais de l'Industrie at night. There is a green-house of black glass into which no solar ray penetrates. Electricity stimulates the vitality of plants there and brings them to bloom and bear flowers. They are in a thoroughly healthy condition, and do not appear as if they ever wanted to go to sleep at night. All the twenty-four hours they are exposed to the rays of strong electrical lamps. It would appear that to some extent the chemical action of this light will enable gardeners to dispense with manure.

The arc light generally meets with less favor from the public than the system by incandescence, on account of the crudity of its glare and the fatiguing effect it produces on the eyes, but an ingenious way has been discovered for doing away with this objection, and at the same time for giving more power than the Edison Swan lamp would give. The system is the invention of Douce & Co., a very appropriate name, for the softness of the light is all that could be desired. The light is produced by any arc system in elegant vases suspended from the ceiling, at a height of about eight feet above the floor, and out of which beautiful plants are growing, made doubly luxuriant by the powerful fertilizing properties of the light. The light being thus concealed in the midst of the vase does not reach the eye directly, but is reflected to a white, tightly-stretched circular sheet in the ceiling, from which it diffuses a mild and yet powerful light through the whole room. There is a slight loss of power by this method, but this is amply compensated for by the softness and equal distribution of the light.

Caviare for the Germans.

From the Wilmington Every Evening.

Wilmington probably has the largest sturgeon fishing firm in the country. It employs some thirty or forty nets, all told, on the Delaware, ten of which are fished by the month. A schooner is kept busy in the ice trade and a steamer accompanies the boats. While the men are fishing, the steamer moves from boat to boat, taking on the sturgeons as fast as caught, dressing them on the boat and taking the caviare from them. The seines in which the fish are caught are about 200 fathoms long, are 32 meshes deep and are made of 32-cotton twine. The firm uses three tons of cotton twine a year. The season commences about April 1, and should close about July 1, so as to fishh to give a chance to spawn. As it is, the river is fished clear up to the freezing time. Speaking of caviare, mentioned above, it should be stated that it is the spawn of the fish and is a favorite sauce, particularly with the Germans. It consists simply of the fish eggs, properly cured, and epicures regard it very highly. Many hundred kegs are shipped to Germany each year. The firm, after much trouble, is able to put up the caviare very nicely with a patent preparation.

The Boss Girl of Rock County.

From the Janesville (Wis.) Gazette.

Geo. W. Peck offered to give a premium (a sewing machine) to the boss girl of Rock county, the award to be made by a committee at the county fair. Miss Maggie Inman received the prize. She is not a girl of the period, so to speak, but a good housekeeper, industrious, not particularly handsome, but energetic and in many ways accomplished. Several years ago she gained quite a reputation for capturing a den of wolves and securing their scalps, and last summer she went to Dakota and entered a quarter section of land. When the vote of the committee was announced the sewing machine was placed on a dry goods box in front of one of the buildings, and then there was a tremendous rush for the spot to see the "boss" girl. Mr. Fethers made a very neat little speech in presenting the sewing machine to the lucky young lady, who stood in the crowd in front of the speaker. When her name became known and the presentation was complete, Miss Inman mounted the box with as much confidence as an old stager at public speaking, and did herself much credit in thanking the committee.

COMMERCE.

On the Curb.

A large crowd of speculative operators assembled in Rosenberg's "bucket shop" this morning, and trading in wheat was quite lively. A better feeling and improved prices followed an advance in Chicago and Eastern markets, but there was no great advance in the local markets, as a disposition was shown by some to hold prices down. Heavy rains throughout Minnesota last night was one of the causes for the advance in Chicago, though some looked at it as a natural reaction from the late depression. Sales of wheat on the 'cut' were made here at $1 56⅝ to $1 67⅛ for December, with $1 67¾ asked at the close; January at $1 60⅝ to $1 60½; November was offered at $1 53⅝ and October at $1 49¼, with $1 49 bid for latter. November corn sold at 70½c, but offered at 70¼c later; December brought 72c, May 77⅛c to 77⅜c, and January at 73⅛c; October had 67⅛c bid and 67⅛c asked. Oats attracted no attention.
